

Biological Invasions Bursaries available for 2017 4 x Honours; 4 x Masters; 2 x Doctoral; 1 x Post-doctoral

Bursaries are available to conduct research on specific aspects of managing invasions as part of the Department of Environmental Affairs funded South African National Biodiversity Institute's Invasive Species Programme (SANBI ISP).

Projects

Projects will be considered providing they are relevant to one of SANBI ISP's focus areas (detection, post-border risk assessment, and eradication planning). Before submitting an application read Wilson et al. 2013 South African Journal of Science (available free at <http://dx.doi.org/10.1590/sajs.2013/20120111>). If you are unsure whether a project qualifies please contact us before submitting an application.

For specific projects see www.sanbi.org/node/13828

Bursary values

Bursaries are to cover living expenses and university fees

- Honours/4th year undergraduate: R 80,000 p.a. for 1 year
- Masters: R 120,000 p.a. for 2 years*
- Doctoral: R 150,000 p.a. for 3 years*
- Post-doctoral: R 300,000 p.a. for 2 years

*Applicants for Masters or Doctoral bursaries can be considered for a one-year project development internship should the applicant be unlikely to finish their studies within the prescribed period of time. In such cases, a candidate may be offered an internship interview. A project development intern is expected to re-apply for a bursary the following year.

Requirements and Running costs

Candidates must be pro-active, enthusiastic, and interested in doing excellent research that will help improve our understanding and management of biological invasions. Student bursaries are only available to South African citizens and will be awarded in line with national equity targets, but unsuccessful and ineligible bursary applicants may be considered for support with project running costs if their projects are closely aligned to SANBI ISP's focus areas. Post-doctoral research bursaries are open to anyone who has completed their PhD in the last five years. Honours students need to apply to a university honours programme themselves and the bursary is conditional upon them securing their position in such a programme. Project running expenses are covered separately to the bursaries and vary depending on the project. Funds are only available to students and post-docs registered at universities in South Africa.

Application procedure

Each application is to be accompanied by a standard bursary application cover sheet (available at <http://www.sanbi.org/jobs/sanbi-isp-research-bursary-2017>). Applications must include a full CV; certified copies of ID and academic record; two letters of academic reference; an agreement from a prospective academic supervisor; a one-page project outline for Honours applications; and a two-page project outline for Masters, Doctoral, and Post-doctoral applications.
